

The Medidata Certification Program

Medidata's comprehensive global certification program is designed to enable and demonstrate user proficiency with Medidata products and solutions.

Rave EDC Certified Study Builder

The Rave EDC Certified Study Builder program offers a guided learning path to certification for new Rave EDC Study Builders or already certified Classic Rave study builders. The certification recognizes proficiency in study design and build for Rave EDC and related clinical view data settings, clinical view data review, and the use of Rave Reporter.

Benefits

A Medidata professional certification is a global representation of clinical trial operations mastery in the application of Medidata Clinical Cloud® solutions, which catalyze the delivery of smarter treatments and healthier patients.

By earning a Medidata certification, you join a growing network of over 575K Medidata certified clinical trial operations professionals located in over 6 continents and 190 countries.

Features

A robust learning path and Instructor-led prep course to facilitate successful certification.

A re-certification path offers an opportunity to keep your skills current and refresh your credentials without having to re-take core certification program training.

A core skills exam and an applied skills assessment to comprehensively validate role-centric, day-to-day proficiencies.

Differentiation

Medidata certification programs are aligned with product releases to validate and represent your mastery of the most current product features and functionality. A re-certification path allows iterative, continuous learning as new features are developed. Once you earn a digital badge credential, you can share it online to represent your Medidata product and solutions proficiency.
